STANDARD OIL AND GERMANY BESTED

Processes to Increase Gasoline Output and to Extract Dyestuffs From Crude Oil to Be Made Free.

[By Associated Press.]

Washington, March 1.—Two discoveries, both of vast importance to American industries and one regarded also as a priceless military asset, were announced yesterday by Secretary Lane of the Interior Department. They are chemical processes developed after years of research by Dr. Walter F. Rittman, chemical engineer of the Bureau of Mines.

One is expected to enable oil refiners to increase their output of gasoline by 200 per cent; the other makes possible the production from crude petroleum of toluol and benzol, bases for dyes and high explosives for which in the past the United States and the rest of the world has depended almost exclusively upon Germany.

Dr. Rittman has applied for patents upon his processes to prevent the possibility of any monopoly in their use, and will dedicate them to the American people.

"These processes," said Secretary Lane, "are fraught with the utmost importance. The Standard Oil Company has a big advantage over the independents in production of gasoline, having a patented process obtaining three times the amount of gasoline from a given quantity of petroleum the independents now obtain."
